CULTURE VISITS

Tarragona city cultural visit

The students will be introduced to the history of Tarragona by means of the main monuments that survive from the ancient Roman era, when the city was at the peak of its splendor. The city of Tarragona conserves also several major monuments from its mediaeval past. Its abundant Roman ruins are thus supplemented by a rich mediaeval artistic heritage best epitomized by the city's cathedral, which offers outstanding examples of art and architecture from the Middle Ages.

Reus Modernist Route

Modernism (Art Nouveau) was an international movement which originated in Europe in the late 19th century. Its foundations, essentially aesthetic, have their common link in the renewal of the arts and the constant inspiration from nature, from which they took their most distinctive symbols. In Catalonia the movement was not only based on aesthetics, but extended to all areas, being one of the regions with the strongest political and intellectual influences attached to Modernism.

In this visit the students will know the most interesting modernist facades of the city of Reus, especially the works of Lluís Domènech i Montaner (Institut Pere Mata, Navas House, Casa Rull and Casa Gasull) and access the interior of some buildings normally closed to the public.

Castells activity (Human towers)

Castells, or human towers, are one of Europe's most genuine and unique cultural displays. Under the traditional motto of "strength, balance, courage and seny" (a Catalan expression encompassing virtues such as good sense and calmness), castells are an excellent way of showcasing Catalonia to the world. Watching, or even better, taking part in a castells display is a thrilling experience that really highlights under a single project the individual and collective struggle for improvement, the effort involved in achieving a goal, the solidarity and spirit of cooperation between people of all ages, conditions and abilities.

Students will visit a rehearsal of this activity in Tarragona.

Tarragona Roman sites

Roman civilization is key to understand the development of our city and region, in this visit students will visit different sites around Tarragona:

Roman Quarry of Mèdol:

The main quarries of Tarragona were aimed primarily at the exploitation of limestone, very common around the city. Currently, this is the most spectacular because of its size and state of conservation.

Aqueduct of les Ferreres:

Tarraco had in the Roman period two aqueducts. These hydraulic pipes had the mission to lead the water to the tanks located in the city.

Ebre Delta day outing

The Ebre Delta covers an area of 320 km² and is the largest wetland in Catalonia and the second largest in the Iberian Peninsula. Its geographical features and the high natural value of its flora and fauna (over 350 species of birds have been observed in the Delta), make it a place of special interest for discovering nature.

Some delta areas have been drained for agricultural use over the centuries. The modern delta is in intensive agricultural use for rice, fruit (in particular citrus), and vegetables. A network of canals and irrigation ditches constructed by both agricultural and conservation groups are helping to maintain the ecologic and economic resources of the Ebre Delta.

Poblet Monastery

Religion has played a major role in shaping the history and culture of our country. To understand its relevance, students will visit the Poblet Monastery, which host still an active Monastic community.

This Cistercian abbey in Catalonia is one of the largest in Spain. At its center is a 12th-century church. The austere, majestic monastery, which has a fortified royal residence and contains the pantheon of the kings of Catalonia and Aragon, is an impressive sight.
